Course Overview

For the past nineteen years, the Connecticut Trauma Conference has provided high quality education in trauma, critical care, and injury prevention. The Program Committee has invited local, regional and national experts in the field, some of whom have spoken here in the past. The keynote speaker is a trauma surgeon who was involved with management of the Las Vegas mass shooting victims. Other topics include burns, pediatrics, resilience, controversial topics and a “Stop the Bleed” course. The final session will focus on trauma resuscitation. This conference is designed to educate caregivers across the spectrum of trauma care, including pre-hospital providers, nurses, midlevel practitioners and physicians of all specialties.

The learning objectives of this meeting are:

- To discuss the unique aspects in the care of patients with burns
- To review disaster management with a focus on active shooters and bleeding control
- To discuss the challenges with the care of pediatric trauma patients
- To review current concepts in resilience of healthcare workers and trauma patients
- To address challenges in managing medical failure
- To discuss interesting case presentations and novel management strategies for their management
